Victoria Wallace joined the UConn Dept of Extension in 2010 as an Extension Educator with a focus toward Sustainable Turf & Landscape Programs. She has been actively involved with programs particularly in the area of turfgrass selection, for turf managers who cannot use pesticides as part of their turf care programs.

Prior to joining the University of Connecticut, Ms. Wallace worked in the turfgrass seed industry having both regional sales and agronomic responsibilities. At UConn, she continues to provide agronomic support to turfgrass professionals and direct efforts toward reducing maintenance inputs and evaluating low maintenance turfgrasses.

Ms. Wallace received her BS from Penn State and her MS from the University of Rhode Island.
